

The Three Pillars of Transforming Care

Creating a context for healing in the Other 23 Hours

A train the trainer course

The Three Pillars framework focuses on the core characteristics of healing environments. It is designed to empower those who may not provide direct therapy but who seek to be agents of healing and growth in the foster home, residential program, school or other community settings.

The program provides a distillation of the key principles and propositions from the growing body of research and clinical literature on severe childhood adversity and trauma as well as the determinants of healing and resilience. Workshops based on the Three Pillars model have been presented in Australia, the USA and Europe.

This three-day train-the-trainer course is for organisations who wish to include the Three Pillars of Transforming Care in their induction or ongoing training packages for foster carers, residential carers and others working with children and young adults. It is designed for senior practitioners and others with responsibility for training or supporting those who work directly with children.

It is assumed that participants will have some familiarity with the issues involved and experience working with children who have experienced severe adversity. Participants will receive a Training Manual, a Student Workbook and a USB containing material needed to deliver a high quality in-house training program. Successful participants will be accredited to deliver the Three Pillars training to the workers, carers or clients of their agency or organisation.

The Three Pillars of Transforming Care course is based on research evidence, current clinical perspectives and years of experience with children and young people with complex needs and challenging behaviours. Instructional methods include brief presentations, videos, worksheets and group discussions. Topics covered include:

- A review of the fundamentals of trauma theory including arousal and stress mechanisms, brain development, the role of memory, and types of trauma
- Research on the behavioural and emotional difficulties that may affect young people who have experienced relational trauma
- An exploration of the Three Pillars of transformation – the creation of physical, emotional and cultural SAFETY; the development of positive CONNECTIONS with caring adults and the broader community; and support to enable adaptive COPING with life circumstances and turbulent emotions.
